

Can You Just Sit?, by Anthony de Mello

The disciples were involved in a heated discussion on the cause of human suffering. Some said it came from selfishness. Others, from delusion. Yet others, from the inability to distinguish the real from the unreal. When the Master was consulted, he said, "All suffering comes from a person's inability to sit still and be alone." -Anthony de Mello

Published at www.awakin.org on May 31, 1999